Today's Black boys will one day be Black men. While it is great to be blessed to live long enough to be a man, being a Black man comes with its own set of challenges. Being equipped through proper teaching and education can prove instrumental as one transitions from boyhood to manhood. It is no secret that for far too long the fate of the Black boy has been left up to chance, leaving a void in society and the black culture. Black boys have to realize their true potential and start to see themselves as a prince now who one day will be king. Their skin color is not an accident. Their parents are not an accident. They are not an accident. Affirmations for Black Boys is to serve as tool to help all Black boys truly realize their potential and actually walk into the greatness that they deserve to enjoy. Affirmations have the power to change your mind and as a result transform your present and future. These affirmations should be listened to daily, even if only for 5 minutes. Over time the negative voices and generational curses will begin to be torn down and our Black boys will begin to realize that they are destined for greatness and born to win. Be Blessed.
