Lizzy Bennet is a hot mess. Sheâ€™s about to marry a man she doesnâ€™t love, and sheâ€™s sporting a case of cold feet so severe her toes are surely blue. Between her motherâ€™s arrangements, her ridiculous gown, and her stick-in-the-mud fiancÃ©â€™s compulsive personality traits, she simply canâ€™t go through with the disaster awaiting her.  With the help of her best friend, she can stay at Will Darcyâ€™s for the holidays, but to say Willâ€™s good looking is an understatement! She just ran out on her wedding, the last thing she needs is man, but how is she supposed to resist the dark-haired hottie in Clark Kent glasses? Not to mention watching him interact with his daughter only adds fuel to the fire. Oh, holy heck! Sheâ€™s about to endure the longest Christmas ever!

 Will Darcy leads a quiet life with his daughter and housekeeper. He doesnâ€™t need a wife or a girlfriend disturbing his peace and upending little Georgieâ€™s holidays, so when his cousin brings Lizzy Bennet to Willâ€™s house to hide from her crazy family, he balks. He will not suffer through another one of his cousinâ€™s maniacal matchmaking plots! But Lizzy isâ€¦ Could his cousin have finally gotten something right? No, that canâ€™t be.  Something has to be wrong with her, doesnâ€™t it? But for the life of him, Will canâ€™t find a single objectionâ€”and heâ€™s tried! Whatâ€™s he supposed to do if sheâ€™s living in his house for the holidays, eating at his kitchen table, and lounging on his sofa? Sheâ€™s either going to make him lose his mind or his heart. But which is worse?
