When a Hollywood production sets its sights on Snowy Canyon Ranch for this year's Christmas movies, it's lights, camera, romance for the cowboys involved.
Noah Snow wants to go home. Back to Seattle, that is. But first, he has to help his brothers save their family ranch. When his truck collides with an SUV driven by a beautiful local woman, though, he realizes he's stuck in town for a while.
Keely Meyer can't believe Noah Snow is the guy standing in front of her. The gangly, awkward teenager has grown into a hunkalicious man. But he's leaving town any day now, so she needs to keep her distance and guard her heart.
As they work together to save the ranch, they find themselves battling an almost overwhelming attraction to each other. Soon, Keely knows it's too late. She's fallen for the Snow brother, and the feeling is mutual. But unless he gives up everything and moves back home, how can they have a future?
The Lights, Camera, Christmas series is a sweet, clean contemporary western romance series filled with swoon-worthy cowboys and a small-town setting.
