Everyone fears the dragons that live in the ice mountains, beyond the edge of our kingdom. Fierce creatures that can either take the shape of a man, or that of a terrifying beast.

Accused of practicing witchcraft, I'm sentenced to death by my Uncle—the King. Tied to a stake and sentenced to burn, he offers me as sacrifice to the fierce Dragon King.

The moment King Aurdyn arrives, he claims me as his. He rescues me from the flames and says that I am his Tâ€™kara—his Treasured One—bound to him by fate.

He is known as a terrible and bloodthirsty dragon. None can stand against his wrath. Fire burns in his eyes when he looks upon me, and I find myself drawn to him in ways I do not fully understand.

The more time we spend together, I begin to wonder: What does it mean to be claimed by the fierce Dragon King?
