With a new friend to help their cause, those on Haven Station are ready to take on the enemy....

Milton and his crew miraculously managed to destroy yet another Stabilizing Anchor in a different dimension, freeing the people there from the threat of the Helithropes that sought to invade. Their success wasn't just in the form of stopping the enemy, however, as they also gained a new ally. Now, Fredwynklemossering—a hybrid Human and Dungeon Core—has joined Milton, Sandra, and the Proctans in their fight against the Helithropes back in his original home dimension. Unfortunately, returning home presents new challenges as the enemy fights back, cutting off help and assistance to a sector of star systems, leaving them to die of starvation. To prevent that from happening, those on Haven station elect to take on the responsibility for keeping them alive, despite the danger to their overall cause. Will Milton be able to protect the billions of people indirectly affected by the simple presence of Haven Station? Regardless of their potential success, he mustn't forget that the atrocities that the enemy has visited upon the people of the galaxy need a response; the time for action, the time for vengeance, and the time for retribution is now.

Dimensional Dungeon Cores is a continuation of the Station Cores, Dungeon Crafting, Dungeon World, and Dungeon Fairy series, though it can be enjoyed without having listened to the previous books. This story contains LitRPG and GameLit mechanics, Dungeon Core elements including dungeon construction and defense, and optional stat tables in the form of footnotes. Contains no foul language, no harems, and no sexual content.
