Emotional intelligence, also referred to as emotional leadership or emotional quotient, is the ability of certain people to realize their emotions, as well as those of others, differentiate them, label, and readily manage or adjust depending on the situation or environment. These people typically remain calm despite the changes in the surrounding or negative impacts associated with a given case. Besides, they may apply the capability to help those affected by awkward feelings, therefore, making them feel at peace. Emotional intelligence is psychological, where one understands and handles any emotion with ease while remaining calm. Most of us react to varying feelings to some extent, depending on the severity or fun in it. However, higher emotional intelligence people can manage these emotions and have a minimal impact on their lives, even on extensive influences of a situation.
