Survivor. Slave. Worthless human jinx... After Yvette causes a fatal disaster at a slave auction, her Pax owners give her away to the nearest buyer just to get rid of her. Her dragon captor is huge and domineering, with just a hint of vulnerability that calls to her. Yvette shouldn't want to bring any warmth to his life, but the longer she spends with him, the more she wonders what's hiding under her warrior's grumpy exterior. He'll lead his people to glory... Ranel is no stranger to heartbreak. He's closed himself off rather than once more risk suffering the shattering intimacy that love and loss bring. Who needs love when there's a war against the Pax to be won? This gruff old dragon doesn't have time for a weak lover or a soft heart, even if something inside of him yearns for the sweetness that his newest slave offers. Yvette's strength is well hidden, tamped down by the Pax who once held her captive, but as it begins to peek through, Ranel knows that Yvette is the person who belongs by his side. Her body may belong to him, but he's determined to claim her heart. The Pax will stop at nothing to see Ranel's people destroyed and their hopes dashed. Ranel and Yvette will need to rely on one another if they are going to survive the war and find a love neither of them thought possible.
