He gave me my first chance at love. But he gave me my first chance to fly.

Blake's the only reason I would ever come back to my sleepy hometown in the Montana mountains. I've loved him for years, and all I want is a chance to get him to love me back.

Now, my only chance seems to have been burnt away by the weird changes that are happening to my body. And I don't mean, like, 'everybody goes through this' puberty weird. I mean 'I've got talons growing out of my hands' weird.

Suddenly, I'm a freak. All I want to do is crawl into the woods and die.

Until I meet the leader of the Flamethrowers. They're a motorcycle club with a special secret, and they might actually know what's happening to me, and how to control it.

Plus, their leader is impossible to resist.

When Blake catches up to me, will I be able to make a choice? Or will my fears make it for me?
