There are secrets buried inside of me.

From scars I don't remember getting to memories that creep at the edges of my mind, I know there are answers just out of my reach.

I'm missing something. Something important.

I thought the Sinners had my back, but am I right about that? Or, are they just playing me again?

Among the privileged elite of Hawthorne University, not knowing who to trust can be deadly. Because, with every scrap of my memory that comes back, I become more and more sure of three things:

- Someone at this school wants me gone.
- Someone at this school hates me.
- Someone at this school is afraid of me.

And you know what?

They should be afraid.

This is the second book in the Sinners of Hawthorne University series, a new adult bully romance. It contains violence, dark subject matter, and high steam. The main character will end up with multiple men.
