Susie starts off today's show by taking a look at why members of the US House of Representatives have decided to drop their abortion bill debate. According to a Jezebel.com article, some of the more moderate lawmakers were not supportive of a bill entitled "Pain Capable Unborn Child Protection Act". Holy smokes - the name alone should indicate how low they will sink and how out of touch they really are.

Next, Susie dispels some myths about good old-fashioned corsets, which will have you cheering and rushing out to buy one. A Collectorsweekly.com article says that many of the supposed dangers of wearing corsets don't exist. Corsets don't pinch your waistline to an unhealthy 13 inches, and they also don't distort the organs and liver. And it wasn't men demanding that women lace up; no, women in the Victorian era actually liked them and the "hourglass" silhouette they provided. Sexy stuff!

Then, it's this week's mailbag. Susie has a letter from a distraught fiancée who needs advice. Her boyfriend has changed since they decided to get married, and now he's never satisfied with her appearance - and his kinkiness is starting to scare her. All seemed fine with their sex lives before the proposal. Help!
