A journalist. A sniper. A city on edge. As investigative journalist Andrea Kellner is heading out of Chicago for a long weekend, a driver in front of her is shot and killed. The city's gang violence problems have spilled onto a major expressway for the third time in a month. Or is something else at play? Her career faltering and marriage all but over, Andrea desperately needs a win, provided she can find out what's really behind the shootings. With a boss who wants her sitting on the sidelines - or back in his bed, a competitive coworker who just wants her gone, and a detective blinded by his own past, Andrea must look past CPD's explanation and discover the truth behind the shootings. Provided she can live to tell the story.

Lies in High Places is the first book in the Andrea Kellner crime-fiction series. If you like complex plots and smart, ballsy, crime-solving women, you'll love Dana Killion's pause-resisting debut.
