Horatius Bonar shows himself as a very passionate hymnist in this sermon focusing on the Fig-Leaves Adam and Eve use to cover themselves after acquiring the knowledge of shame. He shares his views on how a fig-leaf, a pure and beautiful form of vegetation, can possibly shield Man from his loss of innocence. In Bonar's mind, the one thing that can save us from the anger and wrath of God, is the rituals we now associate closely with the Catholic faith.
