Angela was enjoying being a new mother, but the 22-year-old was getting bored with not being at work. The problem was breastfeeding her baby. There was no way she was going to give that up. And then she found her dream job, for a firm of solicitors that was so supportive of new mothers that they provided a crÃ"che. Halfway through her first day she discovered that the partners' real interest was in her milk, not her baby, and they preferred it warm, straight from the breast.
