Daemona is a thief, a liar and a succubus...
To fully access her powers of transdimensional warping (or teleportation to you mere mortals), she of course needs to gain sustenance from men through the usual means. But what happens when she is tasked with joining a secret mission against an even greater threat to the kingdom than she poses to all too willing men? To have her many crimes forgiven and her slate wiped clean, she joins a special cadre of the King's men to take the fight to a vampire lord intent on waging war and even stealing the local princesses. Can Daemona make the best use her urges and perhaps even make some lasting unions in her attempts to rescue spoiled princesses and save the kingdom?
