All The Retired Hero Wants To Do Is Sell His Wares At Another World's Festival...

The Retired Hero of Humanity—the man who decided to hide in his woodland cottage after his bloody business was done—has gone on vacation at the insistence of one his house guests.

A long forgotten dream stirs in his chest. Jericho wants to give a go at being a merchant and selling his wares at a seaside town's festival. He's never been a merchant before, but it always looked so fun, so why not?

Giselle is happy to oblige; she just wants to see Jericho enjoy himself.

Jericho is eager to see how far his woodcarving skills will take him. Will he be the king of figurines?

Garoonie is happy to keep taunting Giselle while in the company of her favorite person.

The stage is set for a memorable vacation.

Even if trouble pops up, surely max level Jericho will be able to put it down before the vacation is ruined... Right?
