The stupidest thing a con artist can ever do is fall for the man who has to catch him.

Nordin likes to think of himself as a modern-day Robin Hood, redistributing the wealth from those who don't deserve it to those who do. It's fun, it's exciting, and it makes good use of his talents and gifts.

Unfortunately, not everyone sees it like that, including FBI agent Tavin Donley. Tavin and Nordin met ages ago and from day one, were unable to keep their hands off each other.

Now that Tavin is with the FBI, that's a problem. He should arrest Nordin, like, yesterday, except he doesn't. And worse, they can't stay away from each other, risking both their careers.

When fire burns that hot, someone will get burned.

Nicked is the fourth book in The Foster Brothers series, a contemporary MM romance series about four men who chose to be brothers that can be listened to as stand alones. It has a hot and steamy instant attraction, two men who can't keep their hands off each other, a battle for the top, and the sweetest surrender.
