A Picasso disappears en route from Chicago to New Hampshire. While the truck is moving. The multi-million dollar painting is there, then it's not. It's gone, but it can't be.

- Kendra Jean Valentine, underwriting agent for the policy, is on the hook. She scrapes together enough to hire two women to work the case. Two "regular" women no self-respecting insurance agent would look twice at. Which is exactly why KJ thinks they're perfect.
- Westen Hughes owns a failing pet shop. With creditors phoning daily, she jumps at the chance to earn a bundle of easy money, even though the offer comes from high school nemesis KJ Valentine, who stole everything in high school: Head cheerleader, homecoming queen, and the star quarterback.
- Phoebe Smith is a snake-loving, underwear-hating, tuba player with more baggage than Logan Airport - Westen's total opposite in all ways.

Ten percent of a 100,000,000 is....

Well, it's a lot so Smith and Westen join forces on a rollercoaster ride to find one of the world's most valuable paintings.
