Everybody says I look good on paper.

I was adopted into the Winslow dragon clan, with their boatloads of status and wealth. I have loyal friends and a thriving surveillance business. And did I mention I'm built like a superhero?

Only there's so much more to my story.

The truth is I'm damaged goods. I'm 29, and my dragon form is stuck in adolescence. I have no wings, I'm afraid to use my magic, and not even my best friend knows I've never had a lover.

My parents are hellbent on mating me to a high society dragon. Before I can even consider marriage, I need to get back to the Ukrainian orphanage and figure out what the hell happened to me when I was a kid.

But nothing's ever simple.

The orphanage sits dead center in the Transcarpathian Mountains - and any Magical who dares approach risks losing their powers to the Dragon King.

Can I find the answers that release my wings? Or am I the next sacrificial lamb to the king's insatiable appetite?
