Love conquers all. At least that's what the wise say. But what if who you love is secretly praying on your downfall!? What if what you love most holds the power to destroy you? For Erin, Sasha, Skyy, and Jeanette, life's losses quickly test loyalties. Over a decade of friendship wills them to form a silent allegiance. However, one slip-up ignites a spiral of distrust, which, in return, causes each woman to question the other's motives. What began as an unstoppable force comes to a sudden improbable end. Erin must choose between Santonio or her sanity. Sasha's new beau breaks girl code. Skyy's hopeless romantic ways push her to be woefully repressed. And Jeanette's selfish decisions leave her loved ones in despair. In this finale, the only conquerable thing is one's self-assurance. As for love; if given to the correct people, it's undefeated.
