Samantha Reynolds sets off for college to a Culinary school in Atlanta leaving her best friend Sean Cooper behind just when their friendship had started to blossom into something more. Sean also leaves town on a basketball scholarship at a major university. They lose touch of one another until ten years later when Samantha is prominent chef in an Atlanta restaurant. When her mother's untimely death shocks her world. Samantha heads home to Savannah, Georgia where she hopes to lead a calmer life. Instead, she ends up entangled in a mystery her mother was trying to solve. In order to piece together the puzzle Marjorie Reynolds left behind, Samantha turns to her old friend Sean, now a city alderman in whom her mother confided. Together they must learn what Marjorie discovered before Samantha ends up sharing her mother's fate.
