Vampires always win when sex, blood, and money are at stake... Wyatt Grey needs something to change before he loses his mind. As the only son of Holden Grey, one of Eastport's leading businessmen, you'd think Wyatt would have life made. He's gone to the best business school, he's made the necessary connections, but instead his father sticks him in a cubicle and won't let him do more than open the mail. His coworkers see this and its open season on the boss's "dumb" son. The more he gets brushed aside and tormented the more he just wants to cut the cord and find a new life somewhere far away from Holden Grey. Little does Wyatt know that fate is right around the corner, ready to push him into the waiting arms of one Samuel Cabot, one of the richest men in Eastport. As Wyatt gets caught up in the storm of lust and money, he finds that not everything is as it seems and if he's willing to take a chance, true love is sure to follow.

Samuel Cabot is ready for his Coven to make its mark. With his Uncle Emmanuel's blessing he's secured a large building downtown for the Coven's Winery business and future expansion. He's eyeing an adjacent building, but is caught in a tangled web with Holden Grey trying to secure the property for a fair price. Sam is a vampire not to be played with, and he's more than ready to use his special powers to get this deal moving, until Wyatt Grey strays into his path. Sam is enamored by the mysterious man, especially seeing how his father makes him hide in the shadows. Sam will do anything to lockdown and claim his fate-destined beloved. Whether its love or business, you don't dare bet against Samuel Cabot.

Fate demands a fair deal!
