Dear Diary, I decided to keep a journal to keep track of everything that happened my senior year in high school. I envisioned happy things...class trips, prom, graduation. I never anticipated the events that unfolded at Brent's annual Summer Soiree.

I can't say these are memories I'll want to remember in years to come, but I can guarantee they are ones I'll never forget. With the help of true friends, we discovered we never really knew some of our other classmates. As we delved deeper into this chaos, we soon found ourselves asking if saving our lives was worth more than learning the truth....

Will Taylor and her friends be able to escape the situation they've suddenly found themselves in, or will they succumb as the others had?
