A king gets lost in a forest. In exchange for an old manâ€™s help in guiding him home to his palace, the king lets his son grow up in the peasant's house.

Years later, the young Prince, discovers the fate of the boy for whom he had been exchanged, so he develops a plan to save him. Neither handsome youth knowing that love might be found at the end of their complicated adventure.

In my youth and even today I love the fantasy and magic of fairytales, and I grew up longing for a prince charming of my own one day. Of course being a little boy, back then, I tend to imagine my self in the role of a princess as that seemed the only option.

But happily times have changed and I can be a Prince and have a Princeâ€™s so I have adapted some classic fairy stories for other like minded boys (and girls) to enjoy.
