My name is Matilda, but you can call me Matty. Everyone calls me Matty. My grandmother told me this crazy, outlandish, completely unbelievable story about the prince and princess of Stardust, and their quest for muffins. She's been telling me this story ever since I was a little girl. I know that you are really going to enjoy it - it is quite an adventure.

Only, be aware that Grandma swears that this is a true story. Like I said, it is a story about a prince and princess of Stardust, and their quest for muffins. I mean of all things - a quest for muffins? I would think that they would have been on a quest for gold, or diamonds, or beautiful jewels, but muffins?

And, another thing, how could she possibly know anything about a prince and princess from the North Star? Really? I must mention, too, that my grandmother and grandfather owned a muffin shop. It's kind of a strange coincidence, don't you think?

It may sound like just a silly story, but there is one other strange piece of information you must know. There are these two small bottles of sparkly dust that Grandma keeps on her dresser. They have been there for years - well, at least as long as I can remember. One bottle has sparkly silver dust in it, and she says that it is stardust from when the prince and princess visited Muffins Galore. The other bottle is filled with sparkly orange dust. Grandma says that it's magical dust from when the Spell Caster visited Muffins Galore...really, Grandma?

Because of Grandma's story, whenever I look at the stars at night, I can't stop thinking that the prince and princess of Stardust are out there on the North Star. Or maybe they are traveling with lightning speed on a moonbeam towards Earth for some luscious muffins. Grandma says that we should all keep our eyes on the North Star and the moonbeams.

So, my friends, are you ready for a totally outlandish adventure? All right then, let's begin!

Your friend,

Matty
