Due to the sensitive nature of my profession, I am known simply as Mr. J. I have the unique ability to analyze people, places, and things in such a way as to be able to determine what would, should, can, could come next. In a way, I can predict the future. I first developed this ability while watching chess games in the park when I was 12 years old and soon was able to predict the moves and the winners of several games at the same time. Before graduating from high school, I was being utilized as an "unknown" source helping to solve cases for the local police.

When I eventually became a federal agent, I quickly advanced to one of the highest levels - Chief Strategist, Level IV - and was charting and predicting moves and counter moves against the various organized crime operations while also protecting the United States against cyberattacks. I'd like to share with you a carefully redacted inside view of my career in counterintelligence, and later, as a CIA handler. Hold on to your seat; this will be a wild ride!
