

War in the Wilderness

author: Brian Haynes

2026-06

Synopsis

| author | Brian Haynes |
|------------|--------------|
| readBy | Chris Sasser |
| inLanguage | english |

This book dares to win, equipping people of faith to fight victoriously, especially for family, when life is not as it should be.

We live between two gardens: Eden and the New Jerusalem. Between the gardens there is only desert; a biblical metaphor for life. Three main words in the Hebrew language describe the desert: midbar, tsiyah, and yashiyam—three kinds of deserts and metaphorically three kinds of life experience. In midbar you can survive if you know what you are doing. Midbar is what we call, normal. It's not exactly right, but it's as good as it gets outside the Garden.

In tsiyah you can survive if you have help. This is deeper, darker, hotter, and even more chaotic. There are times in life when the soul of your family is scorched. In the tsiyah parts of life, you can't survive unless you have help. Yashiyam is desert you cannot survive. Yashiyam is wild, unbearable, and unfit for dwelling. In this time of life, only a miracle from God and His presence will sustain you and your family.

Life between the gardens is a desert. It's all challenging but some parts are almost impossible. The most important action we can take to lead our families through such a war in the wilderness is to cry out to God. He will hear you.

Reader's comments

comment 1:

â€"â€" ()